GIVE UP POSITIONS
IN PIPE CONCERN*Scottsdale Men Will Devote Their Time to Private Interests.*LONG WITH MAMMOTH COMPANY

Mr. Overholt Organized the Corporation in 1899 When 14 Concerns Were Taken Over; Has Been Resident Manager With Hill as Assistant

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTSDALE, Feb. 26.—A. C. Overholt, resident manager of the United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Company, and W. J. Hill, assistant resident manager, have resigned from their positions with the Scottsdale plant and will devote their time to private interests.

Mr. Overholt was the organizer of the mammoth company which took over 14 pipe manufacturing concerns in the United States in 1899, and for a number of years Mr. Overholt was at the head of the immense concern, but the amount of time necessary to spend in New York to give the work his attention caused him to resign that place. He continued to hold the position of resident manager, but he was a member of the Board of Directors and a member of the Executive Board.

It was in 1895 that a limited stock company was organized in Scottsdale under the name of the National Foundry and Pipe Works, Limited, for the purpose of manufacturing cast iron pipe. The late P. S. Loucks was chairman and A. C. Overholt was the Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. Overholt and the Charlotte Furnace Company subscribed to the majority of the stock and people of Scottsdale also took largely of it. The first board of management was P. S. Loucks, A. C. Overholt, William Smith, Nathaniel Miles, George J. Miles, H. Camp, and J. D. Hill. In 1901 the company was reorganized and J. D. Hill became a stockholder. In 1897 Mr. Loucks retired from the company and A. C. Overholt was elected chairman. P. S. Loucks, Secretary, and J. D. Hill, Treasurer.

In 1903 the interest of the Charlotte Furnace Company was purchased by A. C. Overholt, B. F. Overholt, J. D. Hill and W. J. Hill. In 1904 the Charlotte Furnace and 60 acres of ground were purchased, and plant "B" was built, operated entirely by electric power.

The capacity at the beginning was 25 tons per day, and with the building of the second plant in 1905 the entire plant was increased in capacity to 350 tons. The third plant was placed in operation in 1907 when the capacity was increased to 900 tons daily, and about 1,000 men necessary to operate the plant.

Mr. Hill who has resigned as assistant has been with the company for several years, and became assistant upon the death of his father, J. D. Hill in 1909. He is an experienced young business man and executive.

Mr. Overholt is Vice President of the First National Bank of Scottsdale, a Director in the Scottsdale Savings and Trust Company, Vice President of the Lincoln Coal & Coke Company, and has other large and varied interests. With A. C. Overholt & Company he was in the coke business many years at West Overton until the coal there was exhausted a few years ago. He formerly served on the Borough Council, has served faithfully and efficiently on the editorial Board for twenty years, and is a trustee in Lafayette College, his alma mater.

Mr. Hill practically grew up with the company, spending his vacation there while in public school and college. Upon graduating from Lafayette, he took a permanent position there, succeeding to his father's position on the latter's death four years ago. "Hisbody" is one of the most popular young business men in town and he will carry with him the best wishes of a host of friends.

The relation between the management and employees at the Scottsdale plant have always been exceptionally pleasant and cordial. As an evidence of the good-will prevailing, propositions were made this afternoon to Mr. Overholt of a loving cup and to Mr. Hill of a watch.

P. T. Lewis, who succeeds Mr. Overholt as resident manager, is a man of wide and varied experience in the pipe trade, having been resident manager successfully at the company's plants at Addiston, O., Aniston, Md., and Birmingham, Ala.

CURRY HOME ROBBED.

Intruder Takes Pair of Pants and $1.80 in Cash.

A robber entered the home of J. C. Curry, 223 Prospect street, last night and made his escape with a pair of trousers and $1.80 in cash. The theft was not discovered until this morning.

Before the family retired last night one of the members discovered a negro sitting in their garage and City Hall was notified. One of the patrolmen made an investigation, but by the time he arrived at the Curry home, the man had departed.

Rudolph Buys Dwelling.
U. F. Rudolph has purchased the Jewell property on Washington avenue. It is a two story frame dwelling, situated on a lot with 50 feet frontage on Washington avenue. The former owners were Edward and Charles Jewell. The consideration was $2,200. The sale was made through Robinson & Coughenour.

BOY IS ARRESTED HERE IN STOLEN AUTOMOBILE CASE

Pittsburg Detectives Suspect Him of Giving Insurance People the "Double-Cross."

On the track of the auto bandits who passed through a Connellsville several days ago with a machine they had stolen in Pittsburg, Detectives Marshall and Mullen, of the Pittsburg Central office, arrived in town last night, and are still here making an investigation.

The detectives were accompanied by Earl Birch, 18 years old, who is suspected of having been implicated in the robbery.

Birch came here expecting to secure the stolen auto and receive the reward which has been offered for its return. Instead of a reward, he is confined in the borough lockup.

According to Birch he learned that the car had been hidden here, and desiring to receive the reward, he informed friends, "Red" Slattery, of its whereabouts. Slattery told him that he would get two other men, whom he called insurance agents, and four would come to Connellsville, get the car, and return it to the owner. The party arrived here late last night. After searching all night they were unsuccessful. Birch contended that the car had been hidden in a pit near Connellsville, but he was unable to find its location.

Suspecting the lad was double-dealing with them the "insurance men" announced that they were detectives and placed Birch under arrest. Birch is now being held at City Hall to await the result of the investigation being conducted by the officers.

HIS CABINET PICKED

President-elect Wilson Arranging Details Before Making Names Public.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—It is learned from an authoritative source that President-elect Wilson has selected the men who will make up his Cabinet but the formal announcement will not be made until they are properly placed.

It is stated that William Jennings Bryan will be Secretary of State; Chancellor Edwin K. Walker of New Jersey has been selected for Attorney General; William G. McAdoo of New York is slated for Secretary of the Treasury; Joseph Daniels of North Carolina for Secretary of the Navy; and Albert S. Burleson of Texas for Postmaster General or Secretary of Agriculture.

Colonel George W. Goethals, who has been in charge of the Panama Canal construction is regarded the most likely choice for Secretary of War. Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania is not to be a Cabinet job, the information states.

HOBBLE SKIRT GOES

Paris Decrees End of the Tight-Fitting Garment.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—A sigh of relief can be heard in Paris which will reach its climax when the hobble skirt is doomed.

Several hundred costumes have been on exhibition at one of the fashionable dressmaking establishments. Not a close fitting skirt is to be seen. Another feature of the new fashions is the brilliancy of the colors. Black has been so popular, even for young women's dresses, that the new fashion is a reaction to the other extreme. Colors and gowns are a very riot of color.

Paris fashions over the ears again, sometimes with side curls in the Victorian fashion. The hair is plaited and then wound around in a circle. It is not pretty.

Rare Operation Saves Life of Married Woman's Baby.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 26.—Thanks to kind nature, who strives always to protect her creatures, and thanks, too, to skillful surgery, Rufino Degennaro is not a double-murderer.

Half-crazed by some strange impulse, Degennaro killed his girl-wife yesterday. Some time after her death their son, their first-born, was brought into the world by the rare Cæsarian operation.

Some say that 20 minutes elapsed between the mother's death and the baby's birth, but that is not established. Surgeons say that under any circumstances the child's survival is remarkable.

PENNSYLVANIA, 108, DEAD

Neula Was Too Old to Serve in the Civil War.

LEBANON, Feb. 26.—Although he was refused enlistment in the Civil War because of advanced age, Samuel Neula died only yesterday. He was 108 last September.

He was born in 1804 in Straoustown, in what is now Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania. Neula claimed to have cut his first vote for John Quincy Adams for President.

Extends State's Power.
A new piece was put upon the power of State laws when the Maryland Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad must apply to the State Public Service Commission for approval of the proposed sale in New York of $64,000,000 in bonds for improvement and extension of its lines outside, as well as within, the borders of Maryland.

Defendant Paid Costs.
In the case of Mrs. Kate Moore against Mrs. Ella Marshall, in which the defendant was charged with disorderly conduct, Mrs. Marshall agreed to pay the costs of the proceedings and waive the injured feelings of the plaintiff by the payment of a small sum.

Will Not Begin Treatments Until the Government Experts Have Made Test of the Serum; "Culture Not a Cure for Death," He Tells Them.

United Press Telegram.
NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—"Tuberculosis can be cured. My culture is not a cure for death. Proper administration of my treatment is 50 per cent of the cure. I intend to give the remedy to the world. I am not after money. I do not want it. I charge a fee to those who can afford to pay, but to the poor it shall be given for nothing."

With short, jerky sentences, Dr. Frederick Friedmann, who arrived here from Berlin last night, explained his purpose in coming to America this morning to interview the reporters who met him in his apartments in the Waldorf Astoria.

Dr. Friedmann met his visitors with a smile, but as soon as the first question was asked he became full of nervous energy.

During the morning hundreds of people afflicted with tuberculosis entered the hotel in an effort to interview the physician, but he refused to see them. Until such time as his remedy has been given a thorough test by the government he will not attempt to cure any one.

Dr. Friedmann denies that he is to receive $1,000,000 for his trip to this country, on condition that he cure 35 out of 100 patients. He admitted that Charles E. Finley, the New York banker, is paying him a generous sum to make the trip. The banker hopes to have the scientist cure his son-in-law of tuberculosis.

Samples of the serum were turned over to Dr. Hilton H. Foster of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service for government investigation. The serum consists of bacilli taken from a turtle into which tubercular bacilli from a human being has previously been injected.

ZAPATA LAST OBSTACLE

Rebel Leader Is Coming to Talk Peace With President Huerta.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 26.—Whether Huerta's government will have the task of subduing the rebel leader, Zapata, will be decided today when Zapata reaches the capital. Zapata is one of the worst enemies Huerta has to contend with, and it is said here that the rebel leader is on his way to the capital to sign peace terms. Huerta having promised him a responsible position in his cabinet.

When Zapata enters the capital he will be at the mercy of the Huerta government, and whether he signs the peace terms or not, it is said here that he will not be permitted to leave Mexico City.

An offer of a loan of $30,000,000 made by New York financiers has been accepted by the government. The effort is being made to resume railroad communication with outside points. Since the rebellion began, the capital has been cut off from all communication with the rest of the country. When troops were sent out this morning to relay railroad tracks.

URGES BUDGET SYSTEM

President Taft's Last Message a Plan for Business Methods.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—In what is believed to be his last message to Congress, President Taft today outlined a plan for a new budget system which he hopes to see put in force.

In the message the President declared that next year the Treasury Department will face a $25,000,000 deficit, and he offers the following suggestions: Recall of all greenbacks, repeal of the sinking fund law, reorganization of the Civil Service with the abolishment of the many "sett" jobs, consolidation of the Government into one central mint, elimination of waste in government printing and the doing away with assistant postmasters.

HOODS IN A RIOT

Representative Murray Dragged from Speaker's Chair During Riot.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The House, sitting as a committee of the whole today, broke up in a near riot at 1 o'clock and Representative Murray of Massachusetts was virtually thrown from the speaker's platform by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Sergeant-at-Arms in an effort to keep order in the House remonstrated with Murray for his noisy actions in supervising the session, and Murray retorted. Advancing to the Speaker's desk the House guardian of the peace pulled Murray from the platform and in a minute the two were surrounded by a struggling mass of Representatives.

Fearful Miners May Be Trapped Behind Wall of Rock Near New Kensington.

United Press Telegram.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 26. Mine rescue cars are being hurried from all parts of the State today to determine whether any of the 300 miners employed in the Valley mine are confined behind the wall of flame, which has been raging 1 1/2 weeks since yesterday. A terrific explosion occurred yesterday, in which two are known to have been fatally injured, and two others hurt less seriously. Whether any men are confined in the workings is not known.

A rescue party which entered the mine last night narrowly escaped death, when a second explosion occurred. The injured men, H. G. Klock and John O'Brien, who were fatally injured, "Daniel" Sharp, who inhaled fire and smoke, and John Coughenour, burned about the face and hands.

COP WILL STICK

Lemon Denies Report That "Strikers" Have Caused Him Uneasiness.

The assertion that former patrolman had "captured his goat" and that he was ready to quit, is indignantly denied by Patrolman Andrew C. Lemon, who says that he has had no intention of resigning from the police force. Lemon terms the statement a malicious accusation intended to stir up trouble.

It is learned that Rollie Conn is confined to his home at Somerset by illness. He is expected to arrive here next Monday.

It is not difficult to obtain good men to join the force is shown by the number of applications filed. Last night word was received that R. F. Holt of Weathers, who served as a member of the State Constabulary for five years, and who since has been engaged in police work, is an applicant for a position. Another applicant received from Charles Colley of Mount Pleasant.

AFTER GLASS FACTORY

Chamber of Commerce Has Fine Site Near Snyderstown in View.

An effort is to be made through the Chamber of Commerce to secure a glass manufacturing company to locate here. Secretary J. T. The property is owned by J. R. Davidson, of New York, and is within a short distance of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks.

John A. Guller, who is visiting in San Antonio, Texas, sent a clipping from one of the San Antonio papers to Secretary H. T. Hoag, of the Chamber of Commerce. It is an editorial entitled "Burying Mossbacks," and contains the methods employed by the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce in dealing with the town "knockers."

Men Work Four Hours to Reach Body of McIntyre, Slav Not Recovered Until Next Day; McIntyre One of Best Known Men in the Region.

John McIntyre, one of the most widely known employees of the L. C. Frick Coke Company, and John Sliokas, a Slav, were caught by a fall of slate yesterday morning in the mines at Leisenring No. 1 and instantly killed. The accident occurred about 11 o'clock. Mr. McIntyre, 35, was working with Sliokas when the roof fell. Another laborer working with the men had left them a short time before and escaped injury.

The fall was an unusually large one. It took the men four hours to reach the body of Mr. McIntyre. His shoulder was dislocated, his wrist broken and his body badly bruised. The men worked all night in search for Sliokas. His body was discovered this morning at 5 o'clock.

Both bodies were removed to Funeral Director J. L. Slader's parlors and prepared for burial. Mr. McIntyre's body was taken to his home at Leisenring No. 1 this afternoon. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Vincent DePaul's church at Leisenring No. 1, Friday morning. No arrangements had been made at noon for the funeral of Sliokas. Coroner H. J. Bell was notified of the accident and will hold an inquest next week.

Mr. McIntyre had resided at Leisenring for 30 years and was one of the best known mining men of Fayette county. He was a member of St. Vincent DePaul's church at Leisenring No. 1, and in addition to his widow is survived by the following children: Taylor Coal & Coke Company at Seagrigh; Charles, his home at Seagrigh; Felix, live boys at Lacle; Shannon Thomas and Martin, mechanics in the Baltimore & Ohio shops here. Mrs. Patrick Kelly and Mrs. Thomas are also in the family. Mrs. John Hampshire, Cook Crook; Misses Rose, Agnes, Anna and Ellen McIntyre at home.

Sliokas is survived by his widow and four children. Sliokas had been working in the mines but three days, having come from Leisenring No. 4. Mine Inspector J. F. Struble, Michael Bell, William Hennessy and several other laborers helped remove the bodies from the mines.

FIRST AID CREWS

West Penn Names a Safety Committee to Handle the Work.

The West Penn is making arrangements to organize First Aid crews at the regular meeting of the board of departments here yesterday, a committee was appointed to supervise the work. It consists of G. Koeber of the Transportation Department, and S. S. Whippley of the Power Department.

Each member of the committee will organize a crew in his department and it is planned to have a limited number of the First Aid men receive instruction in First Aid work each Monday night from Secretary J. T. Buer of the Y. M. C. A.

The course to be taught will be that of the American Red Cross Society, and when a member of the crew has passed the final examinations in primary relief work, he will be given a certificate of membership in the Red Cross Society.

CHURCH IS ENTERED.

Junior Discovers Viol of Provisions but Nothing is Disturbed.

While the junior, August Peterson, was absent for one half hour last night, some unknown persons attempted to forcibly enter the Methodist Protestant Church on Apple street.

Mr. Peterson left the church at 8:30 o'clock to go to his home, and upon returning at 9, discovered that two windows had been removed from the side of the edifice by the intruders. Nothing had been taken from the church, and the supposition is that the men, whoever they were, were looking for a comfortable place to spend the night.

FUMIGATING METHOD CHANGED IN FIGHT AGAINST MEASLES

Board of Health Believes That Spread of Malaria Has Been Checked; Situation Improves.

In its efforts to cope with the prevalence of measles, the Board of Health has purchased new fumigating devices. They are simple, effective and more economical than the old machine, and are said to meet all of the requirements.

The disinfectant is in the shape of a small lamp, which, after being used one time is discarded. One and one-half gross of these lamps were purchased by the board at a cost of 30 cents each.

Health Officer B. Rottler yesterday interviewed the managers of the most picturesque houses, and all agreed to fumigate their amusement places once a week. These fumigations will be used, and each Monday morning the Health Officer will inspect the buildings.

Within 60 cases of measles have been reported to the board, it is known that there are others which have not been reported, it is believed that the epidemic has been checked over the disease. Only one new case was reported to Mr. Rottler yesterday.

Typhoid fever, which caused considerable alarm for time and resulted in an investigation being made here by the State Health authorities, has virtually disappeared. No new cases have been reported for several days, and practically all of the patients have recovered.

This morning the Health Officer fumigated the home of S. Swan, 341 East Main street, where a case of scarlet fever existed, and the residence of William Walter, 308 Second street, where an inmate was ill with tuberculosis.

ITS SCOPE ENLARGED

President Signs Bill Extending Bureau of Mines Activities.

President Taft has signed a bill which more clearly defines the functions and broadens the scope of the Federal Bureau of Mines. This act is the first general recognition by the Federal Government of all branches of the mining industry, according to Representative Foster, chairman of the House Committee on Mines and Mining.

"The Bureau of Mines retains its original name under the law, he said, 'but it becomes a bureau of mining, metallurgy and geology. This act broadens the scope of the bureau to include the entire mining industry, and to better safeguard the lives of the men engaged in hazardous occupations; to prevent unnecessary waste of natural resources; to aid in the general upbuilding of mining.'

A mule whose name is "Lizzie," "Liz" or "Leese," is the cause of a suit for $25,000 entered in the United States District Court by Andy Michla against the Greensburg-Connellsville Coal & Coke Company, for whom he formerly worked. Michla alleges that he has been crippled for life as a result of Lizzie, Liz or Leese's last September, causing him to be run over by a coal wagon.

The defendant company's mine is near Ligonier. Michla alleges that for damages on the alleged failure of the mine owners to provide him with a "safe" mule, compelling him to work with one that they knew was not "safe."

NEW TREATY PROPOSED

It Would Give Foreigners Right to Seek Patents.

Under the terms of a treaty which President Taft has sent to the Senate for approval, the existing Italian treaty would be amended to afford aliens of Italian nationality to same rights as native citizens in the United States. The new treaty would give the treaty, nearly every other country would have the same right to claim for their subjects in America the same rights.

Under decisions of the Supreme Court it has heretofore been held that a non-resident alien has no right of action against a corporation, or individual, whose injury resulted in death. The treaty just submitted this difficulty would be overcome.

Railroad Men Tell Committee That the Trains are Required to Run Slower Than Automobiles; Offer is Made to Bear Share of Expense of Paving.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania railroad met the Railroad Committee of Council last night in response to an invitation from the Councilmen to discuss grade crossings. J. H. Grumbe, Assistant Superintendent of the Pittsburgh Division, with headquarters at Youngwood, debated the proposition at considerable length. No decision was reached by the committee, but the Committee will report to Council at the next meeting. The discussion was frank, courteous and friendly.

Although not agreeing with the committee that watchmen should be stationed at the more important grade crossings within the borough, Mr. Grumbe suggested that Arch street be graded and paved, providing a thoroughfare for the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, thereby diverting much of the traffic to that route and lessening the risk of accidents at the Pittsburgh street grade crossing. Mr. Grumbe said that the Pennsylvania railroad would willingly bear its share of the expense of this improvement. He indicated that it would do the grading and paving under its tracks.

Mr. Grumbe pointed out to Chairman of the committee that the placing of watchmen at the most important grade crossings of the Pennsylvania within the borough. As a borough, the town has no authority to require that crossings be protected, but the railroad has indicated its willingness to be reasonable in the matter.

MORALS AND POLITICS.

In the debate of the Local Option bill yesterday, the Honorable D. Lloyd Claycomb, a recently escaped Bull Moose from Blair county, illustrated his argument for the bill by pointing out Fayette county as "a horrible example of drunkenness and immorality" under the license laws.

We desire to say, firstly and emphatically, that the community is quite as sober and moral as the Honorable Claycomb's honorable city of Altoona; and, secondly, that the situation here would not be improved by the enactment of Local Option or other like Prohibitory laws, for the reason that such evil conditions as exist here are largely due to the heterogeneous character of the population incident to our immense coal and coke operations. A very large portion of the labor employed therein is necessarily foreign. It comes here in a rather crude state. We have to teach it our language, customs and laws; and, so well is this work of education performed, that it results in the making of some excellent citizens out of some unpromising materials.

But the Honorable Claycomb's attack upon Fayette county was not prompted by our moral conditions. His quarrel is with our political affiliations. In Bull Moose eyes, the worst crime Fayette county ever committed was to refuse a Republican endorsement to the dishonorable Third Term ambitions of the Honorable Roosevelt.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The proposition for a Constitutional Convention is not looked upon with enthusiasm by conservative citizens. The present Constitution is forty years old to be sure, but that is not very old for a Good Constitution, and our Constitution is regarded in this circle as a model. It was fashioned by able statesmanship untainted with the suspicion of sinister influences. With a few minor changes it will do very well.

A new Constitution modeled after the "progressive" ideas of those who are advocating radical changes in the fundamental laws would be like a shot of a public calamity. We have a notion that it would be too strongly enough to encompass its own destruction at the polls, but if we have no assurance of having anything better than our present Constitution offered us there is no use inviting a worse.

The wage troubles of the railroads are just beginning. The demands of the locomotive engineers have been settled; those of the firemen are under consideration; the trainmen are formulating their demands; and the return are not all in yet. In the meantime the suggestions of the transportation interests for increased rates have not met with any response. The big traffic of locomotives is keeping the earnings of the railroads, but it is unpleasant to contemplate a possible decline in freight business.

If it were not for the Conneltsville fire department the railroads would burn up every now and then.

It has been discovered that the blood-and-iron policy of the first and greatest Diaz is necessary to the restoration of order in Mexico. Without resorting to this policy, the restoration of order in Mexico is nearly every fence corner and on some street corners just now.

There are plenty of good men who will be glad to serve on the Conneltsville police force at the salary paid, and if any of those already chosen fail to appear others should be selected at once. Above all it should be understood that those who take places on the Conneltsville police force are not taking the places of anybody else.

The Working Classes are popular in the public school.

The Union Creek Valley railroad rate case will be heard soon and in view of its simple character it ought to be soon determined.

DO WHAT YOU HAVE TO DO TODAY.

(Copyright, 1911 by J. F. Fallon.)

Do not say "business tomorrow" for this phrase carries with it the threat of lost opportunities. The man who first said "business tomorrow" was the first to lose his life by failing to open a letter giving warning of a conspiracy against him.

Do what you have to do today; do your buying today; take advantage of the opportunities COUPONERS' advertisers offer you today. The cause of the particular buying opportunities they offer you in their advertisements today may be uncommon conditions. If you pass by these opportunities to secure exceptional values, high quality, and reasonable prices you are not doing your duty to yourself and your family.

Your failure to spend a few minutes each day on the advertisements presented by THE COURIER'S advertisers hurts in the place where it hurts most in these days of high cost of living—the pocketbook.

Make your motto "business today" not "business tomorrow." read the advertisements in THE COURIER closely and constantly today and every day.

Special to The Courier. SCOTSDALE, Feb. 26.—The program committee for the eighth annual Farmers' Institute at Scottdale has arranged the program for the coming week which will be held in the Chamber of Commerce hall, Reid building, on March 14 and 15, under the auspices of the State Department of Agriculture.

J. Lyman Loucks is the local chairman and Hon. M. P. Shoemaker of Greensburg the county chairman. Arthur J. Porter is the Secretary. The program committee is made up of Edward Werkmann, Albert L. Porter and Harry E. Kelley and the Music Committee of A. R. Loucks, N. R. Lyons and Elmer Morrow. The following program has been made up, subject to change. The sessions will open at 9:30 on Friday morning, March 14, with J. Lyman Loucks presiding. There will be music and the invocation, followed by address of welcome by the Rev. H. S. Piper. The response will be by Prof. Franklin Menzies, who with Dr. M. P. Shoemaker will be the State lecturer assigned to this place. Mr. Stephens, the orchardist at the Allegheny county work house, makes the third of the lecturers coming here. Mr. Stephens will speak on the subject of "Growing an Orchard." "Maintenance of Soil Fertility and Soil Moisture" will be Prof. Menzies' topic at the morning session.

Arthur J. Porter will be chairman of the afternoon sessions which opens at 1:30. "Economic Points of the Wholesome Production of Milk" will be Dr. Conard's topic, and "Marketing of Orchard Products" will be talked on by Mr. Stephens.

The Friday evening session will open at 7:30 with J. W. Rath presiding. "The Water Supply for the Dairy" will be the subject of Dr. Conard's address, and "Domestic Chemistry for the Farmer" that of Prof. Menzies.

The Saturday morning session will open at 9:30 with A. R. Loucks presiding. "Economic Points of the Wholesome Production of Milk" will be Dr. Conard's topic, and "Marketing of Orchard Products" will be talked on by Mr. Stephens.

The Saturday afternoon session will open at 1:30 with Albert L. Porter presiding. "Economic Points of the Wholesome Production of Milk" will be Dr. Conard's topic, and "Marketing of Orchard Products" will be talked on by Mr. Stephens.

The Saturday evening session will open at 7:30 with Prof. Samuel F. Fausold presiding. "Comparative Characteristics of the Dairy Herd" will be the subject of Dr. Conard's talk, and "Domestic Chemistry in the Country School" will be told of by Prof. Menzies.

The sessions will all be interspersed with music, vocal and instrumental. Through the courtesy of Elmer Morrow there will be Victrola selections from the world's greatest music given at the intermissions.

General W. H. Carter to Command 10,000 Troops on Mexican Line

GENERAL CARTER

FORDING A STREAM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Secretary of War Stimson has issued orders for the mobilization at Galveston of the entire Second division of the army, including the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth brigades. The Fifth infantry brigade was ordered on Saturday to entrain for Galveston. With the Second division will go a full quota of infantry, cavalry, artillery, signal corps, etc., constituting what is practically a complete army, for possible invasion.

The division will be under the command of Major General William Carter, who, in the event of intervention, would in all likelihood lead the army of invasion. In addition to the troops started toward Galveston by Saturday's orders, the latest orders will move about 10,000 more soldiers. The Third and Fourteenth regiments of cavalry will probably join the Galveston camp.

Secretary of War Stimson said that placing the whole Second division at Galveston was simply one of the final steps in the completion of President Taft's precautionary plans.

DICKERSON RUN.

DICKERSON RUN, Feb. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Deavers were shopping and calling on friends in Connellsville Tuesday afternoon.

P. J. Ogilvie of Vanderhill was transacting business at Scottdale yesterday morning, bringing her mother, Mrs. Shupe with her.

Prof. U. L. Gordy left last evening for Philadelphia, where he will attend a convention of the Superintendents' Department of National Educational Association.

Dr. B. M. Lohr's Sunday school class of the United Brethren church, held a business meeting at the church street home of their President, Mrs. Harvey Shupe.

Mrs. Eugene Warden gave a nicely appointed reception at her South Side home yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. S. Lightcup of Latrobe, was on the receiving line with Mrs. Warden. Eighty guests were present from Latrobe, Greensburg and this place. The color scheme was carried out in yellow and white. The centerpiece on the table was long. The green used in decorating were all potted plants from the Warden conservatory. The reception room door was a small lilac tree in full bloom, also from their own conservatory. Gambol's orchestra furnished the music. Delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Joseph Marsh entertained friends from Greensburg and this place with six tables of bridge at her Main street home last evening. Refreshments were served.

The regular monthly meeting of the Civic Club will be held in the Municipal building next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At this meeting officers for the coming year will be elected and other very important matters will be transacted. A full attendance is requested.

When Company E, Tenth Regiment, assembled at the Armory on next Sunday evening to leave for Washington it will be earlier than the time set to leave for Washington, but at this time a preliminary inspection will be held.

During the wonderful offer I will be in charge and every patient will get a scientific examination and glasses properly adjusted. REMEMBER I am making this offer to build up my business, and cannot afford to exaggerate. Special prices during offer on specially ground lenses and Bifocals.

For one week only, Gold Filled Eye-glass Mountings—every pair guaranteed by the makers—fitted with our own lenses—including examination, $1.00.

All frames and mountings are stamped on the bridge Stevens S. Q.—don't take my word. They are gold filled—not gold plated—permanently guaranteed—and will be replaced at any time if they fail to give satisfaction.

Caution about the Use and Selection of Spectacles. Persons having normal vision will be able to read this print at a distance of 14 inches from the eye with ease and comfort; also will be able to read it with each eye separately. If unable to do so your eyes are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes have been examined and fitted with a pair of spectacles that glasses are needed. The lenses sold in the cheap goods stores are of unusual density and have imperfectly formed surfaces. Continued use of these poorer lenses will result in positive injury from the constant strain upon the muscles of accommodation to supply the defects in the glass.

The Last Week

THIS WILL BE POSITIVELY THE LAST WEEK OF THIS WONDERFUL OFFER AND FOR THE BALANCE OF THIS WEEK ONLY I WILL FIT YOUR EYES WITH $3.50 OR $5.00 STEVENS S. Q. GOLD-FILLED EYE GLASSES FOR $1.00. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUND.

PLEASE REMEMBER, I AM DOING THIS TO BUILD UP A PERMANENT BUSINESS. COME EARLY IN THE MORNING AND EARLY IN THE WEEK AND YOU WILL BE SURE TO GET WAITED ON.

THIS STEVENS OFFER is an advertising proposition pure and simple—your advantage is a superior grade of goods at a special low price—my profit is making 600 new acquaintances and winning their confidence.

Stevens mountings are the best in the world—they occupy the same position in the optical trade as "Rogers B. 1547" or "Waltham" do in the watch business.

SUCH A STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT no doubt makes you ask if it is absolutely bona fide, and if so, why I do it. The whole story is this: I have decided to make this unheard-of sacrifice of regular $3.50 and $5.00 gold filled glasses at $1.00 for one week to gain the full support and patronage of Connellsville people and thus build up an extensive optical business. The lenses are the same I use in my regular line, every one fully guaranteed, and I use just as much care in fitting the eyes. Difficult cases a specialty.

It is not necessary for the eye to be sore to indicate the need of glasses. In many cases the eye may be perfectly healthy and glasses may be needed for the reasons which are only apparent to the physician or skilled eye specialist.

Suits And Coats Spring--1913

Madam—have you stopped to consider that there is less than four weeks to prepare for the "Easter Parade?"

The reflection of "Madam Style's" mirror is vividly reflected in our Cloak and Suit Parlor. New Paris and American styles are very evident in all the new cloth ideas, such as ratines, whipcords, serges, diagonals, poplins, mannish worsteds, novelty cloths, shepherd checks, line stripes, fancy mixtures and broad straight stripes, and all the styles are very chic—the new Balkan and Russian blouses, the short, snappy cutaways, the belted effects and the new straight front effects are seen here at their best.

Suits—This Spring brings many new ideas in style and clever newcloths. E Ponges and Ratines are very good this year. Broad diagonals and wide and narrow straight stripes are very new. The length is a trifle shorter than last spring. The long and broad reve has also found favor. The new blues and tan are going to be the predominating colors this season, but many other clever new shades will be worn.

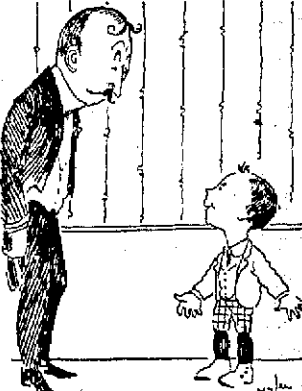

Coats—Too much praise cannot be said about the new Spring Coats. E Ponges are decidedly new and will find a host of women admirers. Ratines will also find high favor. The three-quarter length with an extreme cutaway is Dame Fashion's command. A large long frog and long flowing reeves are other added new features to this spring's coats. As in Suits, the new blues and tan will be worn by most stylishly dressed women.

We invite your inspection of these new Spring beauties. Drop in the first time you are down town shopping—we are always more than pleased to show you.

Price—As in the past we aim to give you the best possible value for your money. Our proven assertion—always 20% lower in price than elsewhere.

We can please you in style, fit, and cloth, and we know you will be pleased with the price.

Stiff Joints Sprains, Bruises

are relieved at once by an application of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub, just lay on lightly.

"Sloan's Liniment has done more good than anything I have ever tried for stiff joints. I got my hand hurt so badly that I had to stop work right in the midst of the busy season. I thought at first that I would have to have my hand cut off, but I got a bottle of Sloan's Liniment and cured my hand."

Good for Broken Sinews. G. G. Jones, Edinboro, Pa., writes:—"I used Sloan's Liniment for broken sinews above the knee expected by a fall and to my great satisfaction was able to resume work in less than three weeks after the accident."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

Fine for Sprain. Mr. Thayer A. Voss, 81 Somerset St., Plainfield, N. J., writes:—"A friend sprained his ankle so badly that it went black. He laughed when I told him that I would have him out in a week. I applied Sloan's Liniment and in four days he was working and said Sloan's was a right good Liniment."

Price 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Sloan's Liniment, on bottles, bottles, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan.

ALWAYS LATE GIRL.

She's the Dropped Stitch in the Social Fabric.

Why is it that so few girls can be on time? Is it that they have no respect for the clock or no real conception of the value of time?

The girl who is always late, who arrives ten, fifteen or perhaps thirty minutes after the appointed hour, who keeps people waiting, with a subtle indifference to their discomfort, is a nuisance and a bore. She is the dropped stitch in the social fabric. Some one is always trying to fill up the hole made by her tardy arrival.

Are you one of the girls who never can be on time? No doubt you think you make up for your tardiness and the trouble you cause by your apologies and your smiles. Perhaps you can make yourself believe that the absurd ones who have waited for their nervousness and impatience and anger as soon as you do. But they do not.

The hostess who has suffered and burned while her dinner reversed the process does not forget. She has been in purgatory even if it does look like her own parlor. She has had to say pleasant things while she thought the opposite.

That ghastly expectancy that pervaded her guests' had to be diffused by her own calm assumption of perfect poise and facile gaiety. She gets a nervous headache as she pictures the wreck of her menu. You spoil the affair for her even if the cook manages to save the dinner. No one forgets you after you have made such indelible impressions on them.

What Women Are Doing.

Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, president of the American College for Girls, in Constantinople, is a native of Canterbury, N. H., and received her education in two Iowa colleges. In 1900 she was graduated by Lyons college with an A. M. degree, and in 1900 she took a special course in the State university of Iowa, after which she went abroad to take charge of the Constantinople institution. Since then she has taken special courses at the universities of Heidelberg, Zurich, Leipzig, Berlin and Bern.

The College for Girls has been chosen by the Turkish government for the training of government students. There are at present more than 200 students, thirty of whom are Turkish girls. Two young Turkish women, Halide Husseini and Gulshah Husseini, both graduates of the College for Girls, have distinguished themselves.

selves, the first as a writer, the second by her work for the Young Turk party. Mrs. A. Calvert Bourgeois is said to be the only woman who stumped the country for Woodrow Wilson. She was born in Missouri, received her early education in the public schools and was graduated from the Massachusetts Law school. She is in active practice in her profession, making a specialty of real estate and probate matters. She is thought to be the only woman public speaker and Chautauqua lecturer who is not a member of any club or suffrage organization. Though eligible to many, she prefers to remain independent.

TALES OF CATS.

Stories That Come From the Historic Tower of London.

Two stories of the intelligence and sympathy of our feline friends were told me during one of my numerous visits to the Tower of London while I was living in England.

Southampton was a prisoner in the Tower with the Earl of Essex during Elizabeth's reign. In some strange way or by some unaccounted faculty a favorite cat of his found his abode and suddenly appeared to him, having made an entrance down the chimney. After his release by James I., Southampton had his picture painted with his faithful friend at his side. The portrait, I believe, can today be seen at Wilkes's.

The other tale is of Sir Henry Wyatt, who was committed to the Tower during the reign of Richard III, and suffered much from want of clothing and food. He would have perished if a cat had not come down into his room and warmed him by lying on his breast, and saved him from starvation by bringing him an occasional pigeon caught on the leads. Although the keeper was under orders not to improve his food, he agreed to cook anything which Sir Henry provided, and the pigeons which the cat brought saved his life. He also had a picture painted showing the cat offering a pigeon through the bars of his cell.—Our Dumb Friends.

MOCK WINDOWS.

They Were Common in England When Real Ones Were Taxed.

The window tax in England, a very old tax commencing in the reign of William III, was not discontinued until Lord Halifax changed it to the house duty in 1851.

It must have caused a great amount of consternation, nevertheless, other four air manholes, for in 1850 there were only an average of six windows in English houses. Indeed, the British architects are not yet free from the bad influence of this tax.

In very many old houses in England today there may be seen mock windows painted on the walls for symmetry—hideous things. Not only were glass windows taxed, but any hole in the wall was included. Indeed, in the early days only very rich people in England had glass windows, and so precious were these that they were carried from one house to another when people moved their quarters.

Curious devices were practiced to escape the tax, such as extending one window across two houses or making a very wide division between two panes of glass. The loss to the nation must have been a hundredfold the revenues collected from this bad tax.—Boston Herald.

The Word "Set."

What is the favorite word of the English language? The Germans have their "schlag" and "zug," which cover many meanings. But we beat them in the one word—not "post"—which you might suspect of the supremacy of ambiguity—but "set." One always thought that "post" was the word that meant all things and nothing. The punster should watch the word "set," which has achieved nearly seventy columns in the new English dictionary. It is a small word, but its meanings are almost unlimited. You should set to work on the word, which you use every day in a hundred senses. And it would be a pleasant, popular game to set down the number of ways in which you have used that word during the day. "Set to partners," you might call it.—London Chronicle.

Misinterpreted.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the doorman at the Staghorn club. "Haven't you made a mistake?"

"I reckon not," replied St. Cornet. "The sign on the door says 'No Admittance' and if there's no admittance it's free, ain't it?"—Judge.

AN EARLY PURE FOOD LAW.

English Bakers Had to Be Careful in the Old Days.

In the time of Edward I. of England bakers were not permitted to make either bread or beer. The former they were obliged by law to buy from the baker and the latter from the brewer. In "Customs of Old England" F. J. Snell declares that if the law defended what was considered the legitimate claim of the baker to a proper livelihood it was equally solicitous for the welfare of his customers and was most severe upon the baker who sold bread deficient in weight or quality.

For the first offense he was drawn on a hurdle through the principal streets, which would be thronged with people and foul with traffic, with the offending loaf suspended from his neck. From a pen and ink sketch of this ceremony it appears that the unhappy tradesman wore neither shoes nor stockings and had his arms strapped to his sides. It seems also that two horses drew the hurdle, which suggests that it rattled along at a pretty lively pace.

For the second offense the baker enjoyed another ride upon the hurdle and then underwent an hour's exposure in the pillory. If he proved so incorrigible as to commit the offense a third time his oven was demolished and he was forbidden to follow his trade.

Queer Egyptian Burial Customs.

The Egyptians have many curious customs in connection with the burial of their dead and the healing of the sick. At every Moslem funeral, for instance, there are hired mourners, varying in number according to the wealth of the deceased. "The funeral are all ways headed by old blind men, carrying long staves in their hands and wailing loudly. They are followed by the relatives and friends of the deceased, and then comes the coffin. This is succeeded by two or three of the native flat carts common to Cairo, filled with women wailing. Mourning, in fact, is quite a profession among the women. Every day you see groups of them squatting on the ground outside the hospital at Cairo, waiting to be hired for a funeral.—Wide World Magazine.

Unique Signs in France.

Frederick C. Penfield was walking along a New Jersey road while his chauffeur fixed a broken tire. He noticed a danger sign at the roadside. "In France," he said, "at the entrance to their towns they have signs that are characteristically French and seem to me delightful in spirit. Over the road as you enter the town limits is an arch on which is painted the name of the town, the number of the road—for all the roads are numbered in France—and the name of the department in which the town lies. Then below those in larger letters, 'Attention aux enfants' ('Be careful about the children'). And then as you leave the town you see the back side of a similar sign, which says, 'Merci' ('Thanks')."—New York Post.

Table Decoration.

Flowers and fruit mixed make a beautiful decoration for the dinner table. Put a glass tray with a deep border in the center of the table and fill it with oranges, lemons and bay leaves in the center of the tray stand a glass vase and in this place white, orange and pale yellow flowers. Let green foliage hang down the sides of the vase.

A FIRE HOUSE ROMANCE.

The Old Horse Did His Part, but the Old Chief Weakened.

Not long ago a fire horse was brought in from the farm, a horse thirty-six years old, that had not had a harness on his back for eleven years. This horse used to pull the chief's wagon. He had the faculty of getting under the shafts quicker than ever any horse did that stood on four feet. He never made a mistake, never a false move. By the time the driver was in the wagon the horse was ready to go, and when he went he went on the high speed. So behold the old horse brought in from the country witnessing again the trials and tribulations of the city.

The horse was barefooted, his mane, tail and fetlocks grown out long and shaggy. The fire laddies went to work cleaning him up with loving care. The old red wagon of the chief was brought out. The shafts were lifted in the air with the harness hanging. The horse was standing, loose, 200 feet away.

At a signal the gong was sounded, and like a flash of light the old veteran leaped for the shafts. A fireman snatched the harness into place. The old fire chief watched the whole performance, intending to spring into the wagon, provided the horse had not forgotten his cue.

The horse knew how to do it, but, alas, the venerable chief, now grown gray, merely stumbled and tumbled forward, threw his arms around the old horse's neck, burst into tears and cried like a baby.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

"Then the Flying Man comes for me and I backed up like a squirrel in a hole until I was under the middle of the floor. It was too low for him to crawl in under me and so he found a stick and laid down on his stomach and tried to poke me out. Gee, what eyes he had! They were as big as my hat and shone like lanterns. But the stick wasn't long enough and pretty soon he gave up and walked away. I could see where he was going by his feet, and he went straight up to the top, picked him up and smelt of him. Then he took him by the leg and hopped up in the air. I crawled to the edge of the cabin and watched him. He headed straight for the mountains and never stopped as long as he was in sight. Then I lit out for home good and plenty. I hope you'll get that old devil for he killed my pup. Scout was a good dog, all right."

Trivial as the incident was in its consequences, it nevertheless cast a deeper pall over the country. The bearing away of the dog settled beyond all doubt that the murderous minded creature was a seriously dangerous, and the issue of the lost daughter of Farmer Jones was no longer spoken even in whispers. And deeper and still more deep there settled into the hearts of all mankind a horror, loathing and hatred of this unnatural thing that words were impotent to express. Had he fallen into their hands they would have become barbarians themselves in the ferocity of their revenge.

CHAPTER VII.

The Face at the Pane.

March, passing down the street, was deep in thought and his face looked as though he were somewhat worried. And in truth he was, for to have a Flying Man, and a woman with whom one is very much in love, upon the mind at one and the same time, and both behaving unsatisfactorily, is trouble enough for any man. Not a word had he heard from Doris since the night he had left her at the door with the words in his ears, "If I really need you I will let you know," and his obstinacy and jealousy had prevented him from communicating with her in any manner as long as his rival remained beneath her roof. He had not expected that she would really need him in the physical sense, of course, yet one may need another in many different ways, and it pained him that she, knowing how eager he would be to come, had not made some excuse for needing him that he might go and see her, or at least talk with her over the phone. Perhaps she had been in love with Tolliver all along. He had half suspected at times that she was, and now that she was helping to nurse him, was seeing him many times daily, was reading to him and being read to by him and having long and confidential talks with him under propitious circumstances, it would not be at all startling if the tender passion had been secretly blossoming into full flower. Confound Tolliver, anyway. Was he going to stay there forever? Why didn't he send for his trunk and be done with it? He ought to be ashamed of himself for his insolent abuse of common hospitality.

Head down and frowning, he ran abruptly into a man at a corner and with a muttered apology looked up. Clay, a half smile on his handsome face, was regarding him with small attempt to conceal his amusement. "This is a poor time to be out and go about with his head down in that fashion when everybody else has got a crack in his neck from looking up. You had best take care. The Flying Man will get you if you don't watch out," he said in his even and rather musty voice. Quickly Allan swept him with his eyes. He had never appeared in better health, stronger or better satisfied with things in general. March thrust out his hand and Clay taking it with a mechanical motion released it instantly.

"Glad to see you out again," exclaimed the former fervently. Once again an amused smile flitted about the other's lips.

"Thanks," he returned dully. "You are looking very well indeed," Tolliver bowed.

"It would be strange if I did not after the nursing and treatment I received. Take my word for it, man. If you ever become injured again, call upon Miss Fulton to look after you. If she will do so you will not have suffered in vain." The faint look of displeasure that ran across March's face did not escape the observant one's eyes, and again he batted him out of pure enjoyment.

"Nothing will put a sick man on his feet so quickly as to have an interested and interesting woman ministering to him. Do you know I almost regretted that I was not laid up longer? But as it was I got out even before they wanted me to. Didn't want even to appear to be taking advantage of their kindness, you see."

Although the speaker's manner was open enough, there was nevertheless a subtle maliciousness in his tones that March instantly detected and inwardly resented. "Let's see—ten days," he returned reflectively. "That is a pretty long time to be laid up with a cracked rib, isn't it?" Tolliver agreed with him at once.

"I should imagine so. But you see I have been away from there for the last four days—was there less than a week. What? Is it possible that you did not know?" He opened his eyes in a look of mock surprise at the other's evident lack of information. March felt like a fool.

"No, I knew nothing about it," he was forced to admit. "I have been very busy with my own affairs. But I must be on my way. See you again, Tolliver."

"Indeed you will, March," was the slow retort. With a farewell nod each went his separate way.

So Clay had been gone from the Fulton home for several days and he had not known it! He became angrier than ever. True, he had told Doris that he would leave the field to her and Clay as long as the latter remained in their home as her patient.

But now in the name of common sense was he to know when the patient left unless he received word? If Doris and himself had been short time acquaintances things would have been different and he would not have expected her to let him know, but as it was they had known each other for years, had been the best of friends during all that time and in a way confidants long before he had begun to make love to her. Therefore, eliminating the love element, she might at least have let him know as a friend that her patient had recovered and taken his departure.

He felt aggrieved. Should he call her up now and ask permission to call? His first inclination was to do so, then remembering Clay's sly insinuations of her tender care he grew resentful again and crawled back into his shell. Perhaps she did not want him to call any more. Perhaps she and Clay had it all arranged between them, and that was the cause of the other's subtle mockery. He would take a day or two and think it over. If he was out of the running it was now too late to do anything about it anyway, and if he was not another day or so would make no difference—she might be glad to see him then.

It was Sunday and he would do no work that day, but it was his custom to go to his desk between eleven and twelve on Sabbath forenoons to look over his mail and get it ready for Monday's dictation. He pursued his way, therefore, opened the door and sat almost down in the quiet room. Five minutes later the telephone bell rang and he got up to answer it, wondering whom the caller might be. It was Doris.

"Knowing your custom of opening your mail on Sundays at about this hour I was in hopes of catching you in your workshop," she began. "And how have you been during these awful days?" He most untruthfully assured her that he had never been better or happier. She seemed pleased to hear it.

"And you?" he asked.

"Quite well until this morning. But today I am dreadfully worried and nervous, and that is the reason I called you up."

"I see. Something has gone wrong and you really need me."

"You have guessed it exactly. You remember I promised you I should let you know in case of such an event. Well, I am keeping my promise."

"And you wish to see me when?"

"Today. You may come out to dinner at two o'clock if you will and spend the afternoon with me."

"Delightful. By the way, I saw Clay a few moments ago and he looked wonderfully well and happy. Said you were the queen of nurses or something to that effect—so thoughtful, so tender, so sympathetic—here, Doris."

But Doris had hung up the receiver without waiting to hear more and he was compelled, much against his wishes, to return to his mail.

She met him at the door with her usual friendliness, smiling and sweet, altogether desirable, yet knowing her as well as he did his first glance told him that she was indeed troubled. Her eyes were a hunted look and there was a certain nervousness in her manner that was in distinct contrast to her usual calm. He held her hand tightly despite her effort to withdraw it.

"What is it, Doris?" he inquired solicitously. She shook her head.

"Please don't speak about it now. Father has to leave the house after dinner, which is the principal reason I called you. I will tell you later." He let her hand escape and followed her down the hall. Impatient though he was to hear the news, he knew he would be compelled to await her pleasure.

They finished their dinner amongst the commonplace of an ordinary Sunday midday meal and then she and he took their seats in the comfortable chairs upon the shady veranda. Judge Fulton had just departed, also looking somewhat worried, as Allen thought, and the girl and himself were alone.

"And now?" he questioned.

Again the hunted look filled her troubled eyes to the brim, she shivered as from a cold draft and glanced about quickly. "I hate to talk about ing there constantly for days appear upon the scene was somewhat more than irritating. He would rather Clay had been the Flying Man himself, for being armed now he could have resented the intrusion of the other with vigor, whereas he must now tamely submit. However, he would ascertain if this was of Doris' bringing about.

"Did you not expect him?" he inquired casually. Her head shook.

"No. It is entirely of his own motion."

"Have you told him of your experience of last night?"

"I have told no one but father and you."

"And are you going to tell him?"

"I do not know—not at present at least. He might infer that the Flying Man was searching here for him and be worried because of its way to me. I shall say nothing to him about it at present."

She arose and went to the head of the steps to greet him, smiling, her hand outstretched. He bowed over it, muttering something inaudible to March's ears, then nodded to him.

"I had expected to see you again so soon," he said drily to the latter with one of his queer looks. The whole affair exasperated March. But a few hours before he had confessed to the other man that he had heard from Doris for days, and it must look to Tolliver as though his rival, not daring to compete with him face to face, had kept out of his sight until his back was turned, when he had at once rushed to her upon the first information that there was nobody upon the field to dispute with him. Doris, however, rolled the situation somewhat.

"Yes, I sent for him and he was good enough to come. We had not had a visit for some time—we have both been rather busy, you know."

Clay did not seem in the least disturbed at the possibility that he had interrupted a tête-à-tête.

"It was frightfully lonesome to be by myself after the delightful society of the past week, so I just absently followed up my thoughts until I found myself here," he laughed.

"Easiest the way that flying animal is misbehaving himself. Too bad I did not get him that first night and save all this commotion."

"If you had not attacked him it is quite possible no commotion would have arisen," she suggested mildly. He seemed a trifle put out at that view of it.

"I don't think that is quite appreciative. He was after you, reaching for you, and of course I could not permit anything like that from man or beast if the advance was repellent to you. You did not wish him to touch you?"

"Most certainly not. But diplomatic treatment might have been more effective."

"Miss Doris, when it comes to protecting our women folks from the creatures of this or any other world, I believe in the gunpowder treatment first and the diplomatic afterwards—if there is any afterwards. But if you think I was heavy—"

"I am not criticizing, and you know how much I appreciated your motives. But let us talk about something else."

Before them the mountains rising almost as straight as a wall, vast, brooding, tumbled as an angry sea stretched away and away into the distance to where the everlasting snow-crowned peaks glinted marble white in the sunlight. Lately the three upon the porch talked along in the warmth of the sunny afternoon, the girl seeming to forget her misgivings and laughing as lightly as had been her wont before the coming of the strange creature from another sphere to haunt her. In fact, the spirits of all three arose and for once all friction between the rivals for the time disappeared and Alan even condescended to accept the cigarette that Clay condescended to proffer him. Then in the midst of their light chatter a grotesque thing happened. Across that mid-afternoon sun a black cloud came floating, spraying, malformed, a cloud which had huge batlike wings and a lean, outstretched arm that ended in a grasping hand. And as their tongues stopped as they stared at this apparition of the sky its shadow fell black upon the lawn, approached them with silent stealth, ran snakelike up the porch until the claw mounting to Doris' waist held her for an instant in its grasp, then releasing her passed on beyond the house. So startling and realistic was it all that March half arose to his feet with hands clenched as though to do battle, while Tolliver muttered a deep impression beneath his breath and the girl grew pale as death. For a moment they looked at each other with startled eyes, then Tolliver forced a laugh.

"Uncanny that! Too realistic by half to be comfortable. But of course it was nothing but a fool cloud, and thank goodness we are not superstitious. Listen to that!" From overhead there came the peculiar clanking whistle of aerial propellers and stepping quickly to the lawn they gazed up. Two new aeroplanes were speeding towards the little treeless playground park a little way beyond which has been set aside for their use.

"It is North and Luther arriving," March told them. "I saw in the paper that they were expected to arrive today. North is an old friend of mine. Suppose we go down and see him. Doris quickly assented, and walking one at each side of her March and Tolliver passed out of the gate and wandered towards the alighting place of the planes. Her head uncovered, her glossy hair glinting opalesque in the sunlight, exceedingly fair of face and faultless of form in her perfectly fitting gray gown, no man passed her without a second admiring look, few women without secret envy. And proud of her indeed were the two who walked so erectly at her side.

They found North busy about his machine, tightening this, loosening that, testing everything. He was a good-looking young fellow of about twenty-five, determined of face and sinewy of form and an aviator of the foremost rank, although almost the antithesis of the ill-fated Putnam. For where the dead man had been boastful North was modest, where one had been reckless the other was merely brave, and where obstinacy had been predominant in the former in the man they now saw cool determination held away. He greeted March enthusiastically.

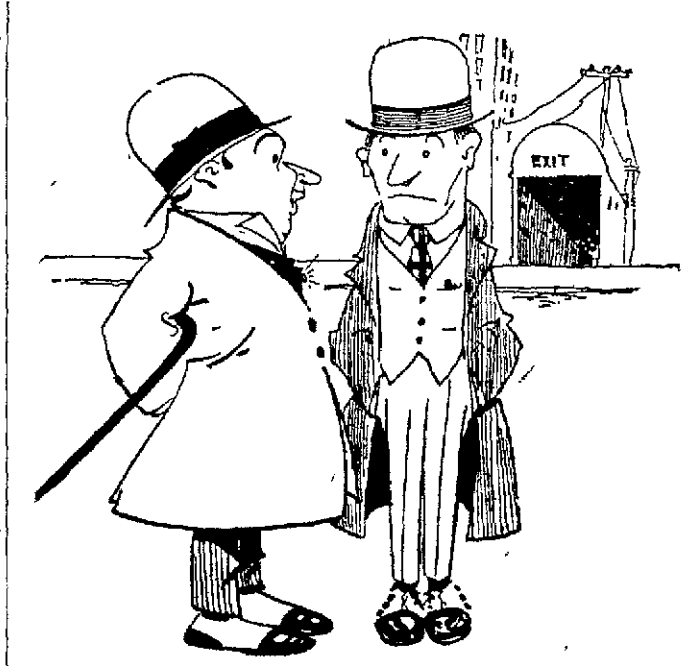

"Mighty glad to see you again, old man. Remembered that this was your home and have been thinking of you off and on all day. Maybe we won't have a good old time together once more when I get that million. Be good enough to introduce me." He removed his cap.

"Delighted to meet you, Miss Fulton." He gazed at Doris with frank admiration. "Don't know as I blame Alan and the Flying Man for making their headquarters here." He saw the shadow that flitted across the girl's face and hastened to apologize. "Bag pardon for mentioning such a disagreeable beast in your presence, Miss Fulton—I mean the Flying Man, not March. He isn't half bad when you get to know him. Glad to know you, Mr. Tolliver." He turned to Alan.

"I wonder if your friends will excuse you for just half an hour while you show me a decent place near here where I can get a bite to eat—merely for half an hour, you know." Doris bowed.

At the Theatres.

THE SOISSON.

"THE SERVANT IN THE HOUSE."

Through its subtle ways the idea that the central figure in "The Servant in the House," which is to be presented at the Soisson theatre this afternoon and tonight is intended to be taken by the audience as a re-incarnation of Christ, is suggested by the author, Charles Rann Kennedy. Ostensibly this character, who is known as Manon in the great libretto of Denares, working in his brother's house in the guise of an Oriental servant, but the dialogue and stage business of the play abounds with inferential references to his presumably divine origin.

When the worldly bishop, shocked because he has unwittingly taken breakfast with a scavenger, asks Manon if it is his custom to eat with workmen, the Servant in the House replies, "yes, you see, I am a servant, I was once a king, a long time ago, though, people have forgotten." This is obviously a reference to Christ's service as a carpenter.

Then again, when he commands the bishop to leave the house, that churchman, in an outburst remarks thusly:

"If I could have my way with you I would have you publicly whipped. I would visit you with the utmost rigor of the law; I would nail you up sir, for an example."

To which Manon replies with impressive dignity: "I have encountered similar hostility before, my lord, from gentlemen very like your lordship."

There the symbolism is so obvious that all may understand it. Asin Mary, the ingenious little girl whose simplicity and purity of motive runs like golden threads through the entire play, says to her mother, Manon:

"I am a servant, but before he can continue the altar bell in the adjoining church breaks in on the sentence, telling the father that the effect of this is almost awe-inspiring in its impressiveness to any one gifted with imagination."

The character of Manon will be played by Victor E. Lambert, one of the most popular of the younger actors in America. Mr. Lambert is supported by the greatest actress company ever sent out of New York.

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR" and "Bought and Paid For" are two of New York's greatest successes. Manager William A. Brady enjoys the proud distinction of being the producer of these two wonderfully successful plays. Both of these offerings have passed their 40th performance and are among the bookings at the Soisson Theatre.

The regular "Bought and Paid For" playhouse act is to visit this city with the complete production at the Soisson Theatre Friday, March 7.

ANOTHER BIG ABERN OFFER COMPANY COMING.

The many music lovers of Connelville who enjoyed the performance of "H. T. Lambert," given by the Abern English Grand Opera Company at the Soisson theatre a couple of months ago will be pleased with the announcement that another big Abern organization of the same name and under the same management will come to the same theatre on Tuesday, March 11th, to present Offenbach's charming opera comic, "The Tales of Hoffman."

This coming Abern organization has been appearing mostly in week stands in the very large cities this season, and in a few weeks will go to the Brooklyn Academy of Music in New York for its annual spring season of ten weeks there. In the meantime, Milton and Sargent Abern are sending it for a limited number of one-night engagements in this part of the country on account of the splendid success score which it has made. The Abern English Grand Opera Company in this and other cities.

It is Dorey, the first advance agent of the Abern English Grand Opera Company, was in Connelville yesterday, and in a talk with a Courier representative said: "It is no reflection on the merits of the other Abern company when I say that this is the larger organization, for that one is kept up to the Abern standard of excellence, although it was organized for one-night stands, while this company has been appear-

The OLD STORIES

We sing old songs—their melody calls up the olden days. And picture us pictures of the past on which we fondly gaze. We sing the old songs—their cadence gives us a better light on life. But when old stories strike our ears we straightway rise in strife.

We hail old friends—we clasp their hands. And vow they cheer our sight. We greet them with true happiness. And comradeship we plight. We hail old friends—we swear the tie is one that never ends. But good old stories—when they start we call for something new.

We praise old wine—its bubbles smile. As though to echo back. The smiles it coaxes to our lips. We praise old wine—its mellow warmth goes tingling through and through. But good old stories—when they start we call for something new.

We sing old songs—we hail old friends. We praise old wine—why, then, let's call the good old stories up. And tell them all again. The old tales are the friends of youth. They held the old and wine. Old friends, old wine, old songs, old of memory divine!

Same Man.

The Fourth of July orator is approaching his peroration: "Our country," he exclaims, "is the proudest land upon which the orb of day smiles in its pilgrimage. Our nation is the grandest that ever sprung from the mind of man and was thrilled with the pulsations of the hearts of the patriots. Never before in the history of the world has there been a realm so thoroughly exemplifying the highest ideals of government. Never before has there been a land whose rulers have given it the richest, rarest impulses of their very souls. Never before in all time has there been a country so supremely blessed in its statesmen—men who have undoubtedly been inspired—men who have sacrificed all personal ambition for the good of the people—men who have."

"Who is the wonderful orator?" we ask. "That is the Honorable Sizzan Howle, who got up at the convention last week and said the government was a failure, that our country was tottering on the brink of destruction, and that we hadn't had an honest official in seventy years."

Explaining the Map. "Well," said the first bicyclist, "we ought to be right in the middle of Digsville, according to the map, yet as you may see for yourself, we are on a mud road some miles from anywhere."

"I can't understand it," said the second bicyclist, "unless the map was made by some of those naval experts."

The Carnegie System. "Don't go in for, Pete," said Musty Milton, "Dat's not a good back door."

Loythanna Company Lets Contract for Somerset Development.

The Loythanna Coal & Coke Company awarded a contract last week to a Johnstown firm in connection with the extensive development shortly to be put under way in Shadyside, Somerset county. The tract is located about 10 miles east of Hooverville, and a projected spur of the Pennsylvania railroad will take the product out by way of the South-Fork branch to the main line.

The present contract calls for the sinking of a drift opening and erecting of the usual mine buildings. Other contracts to be awarded soon will provide for additional openings and for the construction of a good-sized mining town to be known as Coalbrook.

EXHIBITION
SKIRTS, CHALLIE, DRESSES,
WAISTS—ALL NEW FOR 1913.

Many secrets of Spring Fashions are divulged in the Women's section, second floor. Fashions in suits and in tailored dresses are perhaps the most interesting. Each model in stock has a great deal of individuality. Each is shown to display a certain new note of fashion.

SUITS In white-and-black shepherd checks, broken checks and fine pin-checks are shown with short jackets smartly cut-away or with square corners. Bright linings and little tabs of color, or colored crystal buttons—give each model an individual touch. Unusual shapes distinguish the skirts and jackets.

Other suits are of serge in several weights and colors; of Bedford cord, mannish worsted, fancy worsted, pongee and novelty weaves. Prices start at $15 and go easily to $50.

SKIRTS of shrunk and sponged serges, worsteds and wide-waists are shown in black, navy blue and several gray tones. There's an assortment of styles—close-fitting models, rather full models, and some pleated models, $4.50 to $10 each.

DRESSES for street wear are of French challies in striped effects. They are strictly tailored and the cuffs and little round collars are inlaid with bright spring mosses. Some have lace at the neck. Brown-and-white, blue-and-white and other combinations of color. $15 to $19.75 each.

WAISTS are here in a great variety of styles and materials. Crepe de chine blouses, all-white, or white with striped collars and cuffs are shown with round collars, lace trimmed collars and sailor effect collars at $5.00 each.

High-neck waists of cream all-over lace are charmingly new. They sell at $5.75 each.

Blouses of Habutai silk have long sleeves. Robespierre collars and are rather mannish. Clear-cut stripes—black, brown and lavender—on white, $5.95 each.

The collection of Lighting Appliances—shades for gas and electric lights, gas globes, man tiles and entire lights—is fine and varied and covers practically every need. (Basement Store.)

New and Pretty LACE GUIMPES

Here at 50c to $1.00.

because the maker, finishing up his season, fashioned them from all the short pieces of shadow lace and not he had on hand. There are many pretty designs—add the necks and the right halts. As every well-groomed woman knows, a goodly supply of fresh guimpes is a practical necessity in the fashions of today.

BABY IN MISERY WITH SKIN TROUBLE

On Fingers. Water Blisters of Itching Nature. When Scratched Would Spread. Not Able to Sleep. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment Few Weeks, Trouble Gone.

124 Pennsylvania St., Chester, Pa.—"On her fingers my baby had like water blisters of an itching nature. They seemed like water blisters with white heads. She would scratch her fingers until she would be in misery. It appeared when she scratched them they would seem to spread. Her fingers seemed to burn with fever. Her hands would get red and inflamed and she would want to hold them in cold water. She was not able to sleep and when she slept at times she would scratch her fingers. She was cross and fretful and would sit up in bed at night and cry and scratch her hands furiously, especially if she got a bit over heated. The child was in a pitiful condition."

"She had been troubled about two months. I washed her with Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment on her sores. It seemed to be marvellous the change in her after their use. I did not use the Cuticura Soap but a few weeks until the trouble was gone. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured her. This was about two years ago and she has never been troubled since." (Signed) Mrs. J. J. McCabe, Apr. 12, 1912.

A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient when all else has failed. Cuticura Soap (25c) and Ointment (50c) are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T. Boston."

For Troubled men about use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.
